Lettie Prell's Dragon Ring Published By Flying Pen Press
Author's First Novel Is A Global Technological Adventure

DENVER — Flying Pen Press has announced the publication of Dragon Ring on May 23, 2008.

Nadine is a special young woman. She is the daughter of the man who transformed the small nation of Guatemala into the world's largest and most powerful corporation. Nadine is an expert at virtual-reality applications, and when she goes undercover to find her father's killers, she discovers a power within the Earth that can transform civilization — or destroy entire cities. She must face the juggernaut of corporate greed and secrecy to stop an experiment that could have cataclysmic consequences.

Although she is a skeptic, Nadine is finding that the magic claimed by mystics for centuries has real roots, and combining this mystical energy with virtual-reality control gives her the only tool that can stop the impending catastrophe ... but at a great personal cost. She has awakened a dragon within her own spirit that threatens to consume her.

Lettie Prell began writing science fiction and fantasy stories in her leisure time as a creative outlet to compensate for doing too much math at work. She has published short stories in The Lorelei Signal and Andromeda Spaceways Inflight Magazine. Her poetry has appeared in the publications Pangaia and Kai Han, and was featured in the Iowa Drama Workshop production, Kali Ma. She is a member of Broad Universe, an organization of women science fiction, fantasy and horror writers and their supporters, and is editor of The Broadsheet, the organization's web magazine.

Flying Pen Press is a publisher of fiction and nonfiction books. It is located in Denver, Colorado, and operates from virtual offices all over the world. The company's website is FlyingPenPress.com.
